"PUSSYFOOT" WILL TALK HERE MAR. 31

Johnson, World Famous Dry Worker, Coming Next Week.

Bearing the scars of many battles in the cause of temperance reform, Johnson, a story of his recent travels and reception in India, and preaching the gospel of worldwide prohibition, will speak in Janesville on Friday, March 31.

Johnson will speak in First Congregational church, 8 p. m. reaching Janesville from La Crosse, where he is scheduled to speak the previous evening. J. A. Steiner, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. is in charge of the arrangements. He will be accompanied by Rev. C. C. Peterson, H. U. Roop, T. C. Thorson, C. E. Cook and L. L. Marlin. Johnson, who arrived at his home in Westerville, O., on Christmas day after the "World's Tour" in which he spent some time in India, recently has been doing some speaking on the local circuit. "He is now speaking two circuits," he says. "The world around the globe for the last few months he will go to New Zealand to help in the dry campaign there."

In his address, Johnson will tell of his great deal of his experience abroad, especially in India. According to interviews with him, he was accorded a cordial reception wherever he went, but because of his Americanism, he declares also that the Indians are very much interested in what the United States has done and is doing to help in the fight against liquor. He points out that the religions of India, he points out, are religions of abstinence. "Some of the states are trying to do as they have done in the liquor traffic, and in others the British government is disposed to leave the liquor question almost entirely to the residents."

Johnson was given a vote of confidence by the Indian parliament, which, by resolution, declared itself in sympathy with the cause he represented. According to Johnson, "Mamata Pussyfoot" (Kai Jai) by the natives of India. This means, as Johnson says, "high and mighty" and it also carries with it the idea of something even more exalted than a prince. He was received everywhere with glad acclaim and at one railway station the people spread a carpet from his coach to the carriage waiting to convey him to his speaking appointment.

No honors the Oriental mind could conceive were to be given him. Nor was the glad-hailing continued to the natives, for Johnson died in state with the governor-general and other British officials.

Predicts Dry World
Johnson is a firm believer of prohibition in the United States and declares it is pointing the way to prohibition everywhere. In fact, his experiences in practically every part of the world have convinced him that it may not be a generation until all the nations of the earth are dry.

Johnson's presence is the exact opposite of the old cartoon that used to be drawn to represent temperance agitators. He is not long-haired in time has not dealt at all kindly with his hair. He is not shriveled, dried-up, solemn-looking, with a bunch of wild whiskers, who likes to hear heavy, retorted person, who likes to enjoy a joke, is at home everywhere and never a stranger to anybody. He perpetually "winks" and smiles that "don't come off." His meetings are free.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

George Morton goes to work at the home of Plaster, a rich man, when his father loses all his property—a liver business. George becomes a horse trainer and as a part of the job acts as groom to Sylvia Plaster when she rides. Sylvia is thrown from her horse and thinking her unconscious, George kisses her, calling out that he loves her. She drives him from the place and George threatens her brother, who goes to horsewhip him, but in vain. He seeks an education, goes to Princeton, meets Bally, a tutor, gets a place on the football team and aids his college to win from Harvard. He makes many acquaintances. He has determined that Sylvia Plaster shall marry him and meets her several times, each time seemingly widening the breach between them. But he continues in the determination. Bally Alston is very kind to George, and at her home meets her friend, Sylvia, which is embarrassing. George makes a success, and in college secures a high social position. Bally Alston still flourishes, showing preference for a classmate who proves to be a second-rate, Dabrymple. George will pass Sylvia before sailing to fight overseas.

What was one to make of her mind and its unexpected reactions? The matter of marriage was not unusual, but in the air, Lambert faced him with it.

"Yes, sir, right. When are you going to make a man, Apollo Morton?" George turned on him angrily, not bothering to choose his words. "Such a question from your ridiculous. You've not forgotten the dark ages either."

Lambert looked at him for a moment affectionately, not without sympathy.

"Don't be an ass, George."

George's laughter was impatient. "Don't forget, Lambert, your old friend, Corporal Sam Roseberg, and Buster Ignatius Chronos, no mean better! Chairs at the club! Legs under the table at Oakmont—"

Lambert put his hands on George's shoulders.

"What is it that all? You know it very well."

"Don't pretend ignorance," Lambert answered, "and it must be your own fault. When else could it be possible?"

"It isn't my fault," George said. "The situation exists. I'm glad you recognize it. You understand it's a subject I can't let you joke about."

"All right," Lambert said, "but I wonder why you're always asking for trouble."

Betty had plenty of color tonight. As she passed George, her head bent against the confetti, he managed to touch her hand, felt a quick responsive pressure, heard her say:

The whistled farrow was like a curtain, too heavy ever to be lifted again, abruptly let down between two fond people.

Dinner Stories

The chief of detectives was raiding an illicit still. Above the shoulders of the motley crowd of onlookers protruded the oblong head of a huge negro, who watched the scene with a helpless, sad expression. The chief proceeded to smash everything in sight.

"Say, chief, wait a minute," said the negro, as the auto was about to depart. "I'll give you 10 bucks for that truckload of junk."

"Why?" asked the officer, innocently.

"Are you figuring on starting a still, too?"

"Saw, boss," replied the negro. "I'm aiming to enlarge mine."

The bus was starting in the rain, when the conductor put his head inside and inquired: "Will any gentleman get outside to oblige a lady?"

"She can sit on my knees if she likes," said a passenger jealously.

To his surprise a buxom woman bounded in and accepted the offer. After a time the man asked where the "was going." On hearing her destination he exclaimed:

"Bless my soul! That's my house!"

"Yes," she said serenely. "I'm the new cook."

"You don't approve of slang?"

"No," said the purist. "It is offensive to the ear of a cultivated person and is also misleading."

"The man whose favorite observation is, 'I'll tell the world,' could not, as a rule, persuade a dozen people to hesitate on a street corner long enough to hear what he has to say."

"Tinker Bob" Stories

by Carlyle H. Holcomb

THE WALKING TREE

Tinker Bob was so sure it was a walking tree that he saw in front of him among the jungle trees that he spoke to his now friend Mr. Lion about it. "That's the first time I ever saw a walking tree," he said. "The trees in our forest never walk. They look like trees back and forth but they never move out of their place. That fellow looks like he was coming from the tops of the other trees. And look, there is another one. Why, there seems to be a lot of those things. Do they have trees that walk about the jungle?"

Mr. Lion was silent. He wasn't interested in the King's question. But he was interested in these creatures that Tinker Bob called trees. His tail wagged and he now and then sniffed the air. That was a sure sign so sound to sleep that he nearly fell over. "Look!" cried the King, "they are coming closer. Why that fellow looks like a horse with a tree on his shoulders. What a funny color, he is all spotted-up. He looks as though he had been painted."

Tinker was not surprised to see Mr. Lion creep toward this fellow. "Don't you harm that creature," he said. "I want to get acquainted with him. I can't talk to him if you pounce upon him."

"If he ever sees you he will run away and I will not get him, and you will not see him," said Mr. Lion. "If he runs away from me I'll let you put me alive," said Tinker Bob. Silky snickered to hear the King talk in such manner.

The fellow seemed to be coming alone. His companions were not far behind Mr. Lion was not saying what he would do when this walking tree came within his reach.

Presently Tim, the Elephant awoke and when he saw the creature coming toward them he set up a cry. "Grumph, grumph. Come here quick, come here quick. It is the Doctor of the Jungle. O. Doctor, come here quick."

Then what do you suppose happened? Thursday—Dr. Gruffe Fixes Tim's Trunk

A great many people have not sprained ankles and sprained ankles do not know it. Some people for years, wondering why their feet and ankles tire so easily, depriving themselves of such pleasures as sitting, tennis playing or tramping, because of fatigue that comes on so quickly when by a very simple treatment they might entirely overcome this weakness.

This treatment is nothing more than taping the foot and ankle with what is known as a rest strap. This consists of a piece of court plaster about one or two inches wide and 18 inches to three feet long. When the ankle has been strained or weakened, usually the result of a fall, it is apt to bend so the weight of the body, instead of being distributed equally over the foot, comes mostly on the big toe joint and the inner part of the heel. If you step on the floor with a wet foot you can tell this by the damp impression the foot makes. Normally the toes, the ball of the foot, the heel and the outer line of the foot show. But if the arch has fallen or the ankle is weak, almost the whole sole of the foot will rest upon the floor and make its impression.

To correct this, take a strap of adhesive plaster, put it under the foot immediately in front of the heel. Bring it up over the instep, around the outer part of the ankle, and then find it around the ankle as much as its length admits. This will draw the foot back into proper position, and will not be in the least uncomfortable. It will afford the foot and ankle a real rest and support and should be kept on for about a week.

Remember the Days of The Porous Plaster? For some unknown reason the Porous Plaster was the one best bet in the domestic pharmacy. No matter what you had where you had it. Ma put a porous plaster on you. And what a nuisance they were!

"One good yank!" I should say not! Inch by inch, quarter-inch by quarter-inch you went at it, groaning and quaking—Ouch! how it hurt! Of course Maw was right. One good yank would have done the trick and it wouldn't have hurt half as much. But we didn't have the grit.

massaging the scalp, for this work can even excel that of the vibrator. I know of one hair specialist who insists on finger massage as she feels there is something in the finger stimulation of the operator which stimulates circulation. She also massages all the muscles of the back, shoulders and neck leading up into the scalp before she massages the scalp itself.

Her work is exceptional and would not be attempted by many since it means so much time. With the vibrator, however, a very good treatment can be assured, even in the hands of an inexperienced person, if you have one used, but if you have not do not neglect the massage, and with a scalp in the condition that yours is in, treat it every day by either method.

Thursday—Answered Letters

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am fifteen years old and I have a sister who is twenty-three and a brother who is nineteen. Mother has always seemed to love my brother and sister very much, but I do not believe she loves me.

We have not much money and what there is she spends on sister, who is to be married in June. Sister works, too, and it seems to me that if she had some money to go to money there would be more for the rest of us now.

Besides this, I always have to do the dishes and no one helps me unless father comes out and wipes them. I do not think it is fair to me to have to do them all alone when mother and sister go in the parlor and sit down and read or sew.

My brother could make things much more pleasant for me if he would, but he will never take me anywhere I want him to. He always says he hasn't the money. Then when father gives me money to go to a show or something I usually see my brother there with a girl. It isn't very pleasant to feel that you aren't loved at home. I think father cares for me, but he never puts his foot down and tells mother she can't treat me so.

What can I do to make them love me more at home? FRANKIE.

Your troubles result from two things—you are only 15 years old, which is a mere child, and you are the youngest in the family. I believe that after your sister is married and you are the only girl in the family, you will find conditions quite changed; then your mother will give you as much attention as she has been giving your sister.

It seems to me quite right, my dear, that your sister should be in your mother's thoughts now and that the money that can be spared should be spent on her. When a girl marries she leaves her home and the family should do all in its power to give her a happy send-off. When you marry you feel sure you will want the same thing done for you.

FAIR DEAL FOR ALL IS AIM OF EAGLES

Conrad Mann Addresses Big Meeting Laid Work
of Lodge.

"Eagles are interested in a fair deal all around—to the great mass of American people, to the end that better conditions be provided under which the bulk of our men, women and children live and labor," declared Conrad Mann, managing organizer for the national order of Eagles, in an address to members of local order No. 724, and a number of guests at Eagles hall, Tuesday night.

"The individual organizations are called Eagles-Eagles nests. There is the local or subordinate order, the state or district order, the grand or national order. That the order must be a social need is evident from the fact that within fifteen years more than a score of years it has reached a membership of nearly half a million.

"The reason for this remarkable growth is to be found in the constitution, the purposes and the accomplishments of the order. Its fundamental principles are Liberty, Truth, Justice and Equality. Liberty in service, a voice in the form of our government and in the terms of our employment. Truth resolves itself into a matter of sincerity and faithfulness. These involve fidelity to the interest of our fellow members and steadfastness in the support of what we believe to be right. Justice," said Mann, "is the object of government and of civil society; it will be our purpose until it is obtained or Liberty is lost in the pursuit. The Eagles pursue it steadily for in it they find the opportunity for the pursuit of happiness. The quality which the Eagles claim and seek to maintain is the right of each individual to work outside claim without discrimination from others.

"The purpose of the Eagles involve a two-fold relation to their fellow members and to the community at large. When a member becomes sick or disabled, his order at once takes him under its protection. It furnishes him a physician, food. For a number of weeks it makes good the loss of wages or salary. In such cases, it defrays the funeral expenses, and secures him decent burial. No Eagle sleeps in Potter's field. The medical services are for the family as well as the member and although the legal obligation ends with the funeral, it is a creditable fact that no fatherless children or widowed wife of an Eagle ever is permitted to suffer. "From the date of its organization to June 30, 1921, the order has paid: for sick benefits, $12,554,000; for funeral benefits, $4,210,000; for medical services, $6,810,000; total, $24,574,000.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor Gazette.—Isn't there a law somewhere to the effect that there is a $10 fine for spitting on the sidewalk? If all violators of that law paid their fines the city of Janesville would be about $10,000 to the good per week. The steps leading into the Fourth Ward voting place on Cherry street are absolutely filthy and unsafe and it would be a good thing to have them repaired before election day, especially as the ladies are going to turn out full force on account of the city management plan to be voted on. I do not know who the proper person is to see about this.

I wonder if someone will have to be killed before anything is done about the very dangerous railroad crossings between Pearl and Grand streets. I neither saw the train nor the car was not a closed one. A stranger in this neighborhood would not even notice the tracks until he was right on them.

GREATEST BATTLE IN POLITICS ON WET AND DRY

In all states every Sunday and in the congressional campaign we will be able to put 1,500 special prohibition speakers, aside from volunteers, into the various congressional districts throughout the United States. The intent is to keep the people in a safe, strong majority in the United States senate to guarantee that no anti-prohibition legislation can be passed up from the bottom of the barrel. Thirty-two states have voluntarily adopted prohibition before the eighteenth amendment was put upon the constitution so that we feel sure of keeping dry majorities in both houses of congress.

"In 1920 the worst was the strongest effort they could to elect a wet congress, and we put the question to the people in every district and the result was the election of forty more dry congressmen than were in the 68th congress. That disposes of the idea that the people would repeal prohibition if the question could be sent to a national referendum. The temperance forces are much more efficiently organized than their opponents. Thirty-five Protestant evangelists, denominations with a membership of 21,000,000 two-thirds of which are voters, and two Roman Catholic organizations with about 1,000,000 voters are claimed by Mr. Small as the backbone of the temperance movement. He estimates that there are 120,000 enrolled pupils from which pastors actively and continuously are supporting the prohibition cause. Added to these are fraternal organizations and the famous Anti-Saloon League and Women's Christian Temperance Union, which have been contributing monthly to promote prohibition work.

"Labor Union Too. The prohibition leaders have been stirred to greater activity among the labor unions ever since Samuel Gompers issued a statement on behalf of the American Federation of Labor urging a modification of the Volstead law. The claim is made by the "drys" that thousands of local labor unions have endorsed prohibition and will not stand for "light wines and beer."

The "wets" on the other hand have obligations is assured by the fact that its present net cash assets are over $18,000,000.

taken a tack which they hope will swing sentiment toward them. They do not urge the return of the saloon—they insist it will not come back. They do not base their campaign on the question of repealing the eighteenth amendment. But they are concentrating on the Volstead law hoping to exhibit certain of its provisions as too extreme and inconsistent with the intent of the eighteenth amendment. The objective is the return of light wines and beer to the anti-prohibition forces are by no means united on the point.

The dries of course see no way by which the Volstead law can be modified to permit light wines and beer without being unconstitutional as they insist that to increase the alcoholic content of beverages now sold merely would fly in the face of the experience of dry states before the 18th amendment was adopted when one half of one percent of alcohol was an accepted principle of prohibition legislation.

"First Direct Issue. The "drys" however, are not having it all their own way. The idea for congress is the first in which a prohibition issue can be fought out without being enmeshed by national presidential questions and party platforms. It's the first time since the eighteenth amendment was adopted that the returned soldier who is said to be against prohibition will have a chance to register a protest. The preparations being made by the dries are the best evidence of the vitality of survival of the prohibition issue.

Markham Talks on New Era in U. S. Industry

ELLA SIEZEL

That the home is the starting point for all industry and that there is a close relationship between the home and the success of industry was made plain in a talk by L. A. Markham at the county trading school Tuesday morning. Mr. Markham cited an industry which began in a home and which finally grew to large proportions.

"Machinery has now been developed to a high point of efficiency, but no matter how efficient the machine may be it is necessary always to consider the personality of the person who controls it. No machine can be made so perfect it does not require the control of an intelligent operator. The more developed the machine the higher the type of personality required in the workman."

The speaker made it evident that there is now a greatly increased attention given to the conditions under which men and women work and to their needs as human beings. Many cases were cited to illustrate the care taken by large concerns for the human element involved.

The old fear incentive is being increasingly displaced by motives which impel rather than compel, and it is found that where the workers are contented and happy their efficiency is greatly increased. The speaker also mentioned the plans which are now worked out in many plants whereby men are promoted as they show ability to work in different positions. The modern idea is to place a man in the position where he will do the best work of which he is capable. Means are now in operation, also, for training men in the plant so that they can satisfy their ambitions to make progress.

The speaker also mentioned the systems which have been developed to enable the worker to actually have a personal share in the profits, such as the profit-sharing plan, the bonus plan, actual ownership of shares of stock, and representation on committees which determine the conduct of the industry, wages, and other matters.

The relation of the worker to the life of the community was shown to have an important bearing upon his interest, success and happiness. It is of great importance that when a worker comes to a new community he gets assimilated into the life of the community as soon as possible.

BANKRUPTCY ADMITTED. Milwaukee.—Rudolph C. Klemsmeier, dealer in dairy products with an office in Milwaukee, against whom an involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed a few weeks ago, Tuesday admitted the bankruptcy and filed schedules. Liabilities listed at $325,510 and assets $155,347, and assets worth $25,000 were claimed as exempt.

ONE BIG ??? OVER THE 'PHONE A LOT OF THE TIME

Asking questions of the Gazette is a common thing. It is a great one savor and dispute settler. In a few hours a wide range of questions come over the phone. Some of them are posed too and cannot be answered immediately. But they are always looked up and then the questioner is happy again.

"Who are the senators from Idaho?" asked a woman. William J. Borah and Frank R. Gooding, went back the reply.

"Can you tell me the names of some rivers of importance in the United States that are not generally navigable?" Well, there is the Snake river, the Snakehanna, Colorado, North Platte, Gasconade, Chippewa, and the Missouri.

"What is the population of International Falls?" What are the names of the Republics of the world? Was Gen. Grant ever in Janesville? Will a letter reach Mary Pickford? How many yards in Evansville? and a lot more not to mention the questions of sport and science.

This is a part of the newspaper service to its readers these days. You can call 2500 and get the early markets, and the Gazette will try to answer any question you may be bothered with. It's all in the day's work.
